8	OBJECTIVES OF THE SEMINAR	The seminar is mainly aimed at students of English Literature giving them an interesting and unique glimpse into the life and works of the Bard. This seminar shall shed light on many unknown facts about Shakespeare which will intrigue the students to study the texts of Shakespeare in a completely new light bringing into focus the academic explorations conducted into his life, his times and mainly the chronology of his work. This seminar will, hopefully, help students understand and appreciate Shakespeare in a better manner, comprehending the contemporaneity of the body of his Literature in a more mature manner. Students would also be captivated to take up further studies and investigations into the subject, the scope for which is massive at both the national and international level. The resource person shall be requested to deliver the talk bilingually so that it is convenient for the students. There was a pretty long interactive session at the end of the seminar which helped clear various doubts of the students and also generated other discussions which were related to other poets and writers inspired by Shakespeare. The students specifically enjoyed the short video clips and other pictorial references shown using the AV medium. The audience, also, particularly requested the department to organise film screenings in the format of a two or three day film festival on Shakespeare. The department shall discuss this further to reach a consensus regarding the above suggestions.

9. Objectives of the Seminar: India today has acquired the status of an aspiring global power. Understanding this reality requires delving into the regional as well as global aspirations and equations of the country in relation to other powers. Foreign policy can be regarded as one of the primary activities of any nation state that involves a choice between the means and ends in international setting. The survival and growth of any nation state is contingent upon how effectively a nation state formulates and articulates its foreign policies. The objective of the seminar here was to enlighten the students about the trajectory of Indian foreign policy as it evolved over the years, the international setting in which the country operated, the issues faced and the choices the policy establishment made. Given the fact that the outside exposure of the students here are less and awareness about international issues low, such a seminar serves the purpose of generating awareness regarding the international standing of their own country.

10. Outcome of the Seminar: The seminar began with an introduction to the Indian foreign policy establishment and the evolution of policies since independence in the regional and international setting by Prof. Deblina Mukherjee of the department of Political Science of the college to set the tone of the seminar. The first speaker of the seminar, Prof. Urbi Das of Jadavpur University focused on intellectual property rights (IPR) as an issue in foreign relations. India currently has a growing, vibrant and dynamic economy and her talk focused on how IPR can be a tool of economic statecraft. Her talk investigated the historical evolution of India's IPR laws, the current dynamics, edges of friction along with relevant case studies and analysed whether the current IPR regime actually works towards enhancing economic statecraft. The second speaker Prof. Mainak Putatunda of Krishnagar College argued that the new, assertive foreign policy of current times has a conceptual underpinning in the 'Gnan, Vigyan, Jeevan Darshan' or experience, observation and experimentation that is the hallmark of the Indian Knowledge System (IKS). He held that IKS can be understood as an approach to truly decolonize Indian foreign policy and to recognize the importance of Indian traditions of Dandaniti, Anviksiki and Vartta as exemplified in texts like Chanakya Niti and Brihaspati Niti. IKS also calls for recognition of the timeless teachings on foreign policy enshrined in Indian epics and Puranas propels the Indian government to truly emerge as a leader and teacher in the world. Both these talks enriched the students greatly and the seminar ended with an interactive session on various current issues of India's world interactions.

7	TOTAL NUMBER OF PARTICIPANTS WHO ATTENDED THE PROGRAMME	150
8	OBJECTIVES OF THE SEMINAR	The goal of this Seminar is to help the students and faculty members to address certain issues related to emotional intelligence, reduce mental clutter and build resilience in the face of life's challenges. They will be taught various strategies to maintain a positive mindset, techniques like mindfulness and meditation, behavioural therapy and emotional self-regulation. They will be taught these soft-skills so that they can handle contemporary complexities and crises situations, avoid distractions, increase focus and enhance creativity.
9	OUTCOME OF THE SEMINAR	The seminar was a success. Different students and faculty members from the college and university attended the seminar. The focus of the seminar was on boosting motivation and energy, building an optimistic attitude, to achieve clarity about goals and tracking progress via methods like journaling. The participants were also given a basic training on some of the most effective meditation and yoga practices. There was an interactive session at the end of the seminar which was extremely engaging where a lot of students came up with the personal issues and mental blocks they need to overcome and were guided in response. The participants were extremely satisfied with this programme and vocalised their expectations regarding many more such workshops and training programmes in the future. However, the programme outran its time by more than an hour as we found it difficult to keep the QnA session under control due to the massive number of questions of the participants.
